DISTINGUISHED LECTURER:

Yahya Shabazz

Imam Yahya Shabazz is the author of New Leadership Into The 21st Century. The AM360 talk show host is also an entrepreneur and community activist with a long history of engagement in both civil rights and nationalism movements; he found the balanced answer to both arenas when he accepted the faith of AI-Islam.

Imam Shabazz served as Project Director for the Council of Federated Organizations during the 60s human rights struggle in central Mississippi; he served the local Quitman, Mississippi community as Masjid Muhammad's resident imam and the state as a convener. He helped lead the American Coalition For Good Government (ACGG) efforts in California as the Western Regional Coordinator and was creative director and manager for the Islamic Television Ministry in northern and southern California.

As a co-host on AM360, he delves weekly into the issues surrounding minority empowerment, racial profiling, learned helplessness, self-violence and recidivism and a disenfranchised economic base in minority communities.

The imam believes the proper understanding and application of Islamic moral, ethical, and business principles offer some powerful solutions to a crisis that appears to be worsening in the face of incompetent public policy, a diverted populace and an incongruent and outdated minority self-perception left over from the civil rights era. The Islamic view he proposes is not the one foreign to our commonly shared values and good human sense, but the true Islam that saved entire civilizations and advanced the scientific method and more.

What is exactly the cause of stagnation for many in the African American community in particular and for America? Ask the imam.
